Media Agenda Setting
by A. Smith (2020)

Agenda Setting Theory relates to the media’s apparent ability to manipulate public opinion. Freeland (2012), or collective thinking, by giving attention to issues it wants to be in the public eye, making suggestions public’s views on the topic. With its great influence on the audience, the media instils what it wants to have their own opinion, thereby creating a grading of news prevalence (Utwente.nl, 2020). Through, alter and on important issues.

The fundamental aim of agenda setting theory is to create issues occurring in the nation (Freeman & Berger, 2011). The theory states that the more frequently and media, the more likely it is to have greater impact on the audience. Freeland (2012) highlights that types (as suggested by Dearing and Rogers): media, policy and public agenda setting. Media agenda setting the public. Public agenda setting emphasises the agenda of the public. Policy agenda setting explains on the here are significant. The first assumption is the media and the press do not suggest reality; rather, they the second assumption is that more coverage or focus on a specific issue by the media often results in the are far more significant in comparison to other issues. The media affects the way the public receive guides people on what to think about a specific issue but also how to think about it (Nowak-Teter, 2018).

As the media uses agenda setting to control news and information accessed by people, a concept entitled ‘gatekeeping’ plays a (Pingree et al., 2013). Welbers et al., (2018) explain that gatekeeping can be defined as the information control process and the by the media. If a news story, or piece of information does not suit the media’s agenda, they limit is a vital setting the agenda.

There is one main assumption on which agenda setting theory rests: more coverage of a certain issue by the media leads on that issue (Gauntlett, 2006). However, the surge in social media platforms and internet information is still prevalent, but hard to measure. This is because the link between the changes in the opinion of the public and the influence of strong opinion on a certain issue. Also, agenda can be misunderstood by the people as they might not view the details and miss some key points (Nowak-Teter, 2018). As a result, and impact media agenda setting years.
However, the impact of agenda setting can be seen in the European Union: dubbed Brexit. The UK public registered their vote in a referendum on 23rd June 2016 to decide whether the country would remain part of the EU (Ft, 2016). The contested vote. Three key issues were highlighted during the BREXIT campaign: sovereignty, economy and during the last two months before Brexit, different polls had been carried out and fluctuations regarding the most important issue could be observed. This fluctuation was created by media agenda setting. Media exposure of the public through its coverage of BREXIT. Shifting the focus away from key issues, such as the a significant role in influencing public opinion. The national media needs to ensure that the agenda created the come within that agenda.

Summary

Task: Write a 200-250 word summary on the key elements of the text.
Agenda setting theory is the way the media influences public opinion by selecting and placing greater importance (Freeland, 2012). The aim is to ensure that the public are provided with (Nowak-Teter, 2018), and suggests that the issues reported more frequently with greater prominence are more inclined to have a greater effect. (Nowak-Teter, 2018), and this illustrates that the media is not only accountable for (ibid). One key component in news distribution is gatekeeping (Pingree et al., 2013). Defined et al., 2018), gatekeepers the media’s agenda, so therefore are an important factor in agenda setting. There have been a number of criticisms with this theory. Firstly, as the public it is becoming more misunderstand the information reported (Nowak-Teter, 2018). Although the writer questions whether does exemplify where the impact was felt: the Brexit campaign. Out of all the key , the Media’s agenda was to focus on the latter knowing that this was an area of great concern for the public.
